I attended a presentation yesterday and was encouraged to send in a comment. I'm happy (and shocked) to have learned about the Harbor Superfund for the first time, and glad that to see that a lot of information is available for the public. I do understand, however, that the presentation was given by the EPA and was encouraging the EPA'S selection of alternative I. While ideally I would hope to see more dredging so that less contamination is being covered and left on site, I find it most important to simply get started. Since a plan of action has been in the making for 16 years, I'd like to see this starting asap.

Thanks,
